Creative Expressions

Woven in wires

What becomes of me at the end of the day?
 When I sit on my bed and tear open my skin only to find wires instead of veins?
 What becomes of me?
 When I wrap these wires around my neck and they mould into my body like a warm embrace?
 What becomes of me?
 When my body ceases to be mine and becomes something controlled by a person with no face?
 I walk around and stick to every metal that's on my way.
 Reduces to a being artificial,
 I'm drowning in chemicals,
 My emotions metaphysical.
 There's a thumping inside my head
 Is it magic?
 Is it criminal?
 Regardless, I fade.
 Into darkness, invisible.

Rejuvenating Dusk

When the sun goes down and its rays
 Make those beautiful patterns in the sky.
 When the light above goes dim and the world below lights up
 When the clouds are the best version of themselves
 When the birds return to their nests
 And lost men return to their homes
 You will find me on a terrace
 Sitting and staring at the beauty above me
 Like a madman, like a lover who is madly in love
 For this is the moment that makes me feel like myself
 For this is the moment that makes me feel alive.

Whispers of her love

My mother, my friend, so dear,
 Throughout my life, she is always near.
 My mother is the best,
 She never ever rests.
 She always works hard every day,
 Her smile brightens my day.
 Mothers are special as can be,
 But God saved the best one just for me.
 You are my hope and my ultimate support,
 The compliments are endless, like your love.
 I love you more than you see,
 You were always there when I needed you to be.
 Thank you for the care and love,
 You are the best one I have."
